THE GRAND OLD PARTY ASSEMBLES ITS HOSTS

Republican Convention Opened at 12:10
Today at Chicago.

Hon. Elihu Root is Temporary Chairman---Senator
Fairbanks to be Vice President.

NO OPPOSITION TO SECRETARY CORTELYOU

Chicago, Ill., June 21.—Senator Fairbanks will be nominated for vice president without a doubt.

The rebellious talk against the selection of Secretary Cortelyou for the national chairmanship has almost subsided, nor is there any talk of a compromise looking either to Cortelyou's selection and subsequent resignation to accept the postmaster generalship or looking to the selection of Cortelyou as chairman of the executive committee and the choice of some one else to preside over the national committee.

When the rank and file of the delegates began to arrive, the leaders were convinced of President Roosevelt's enthusiastic choice and his wishes will be respected.

Roosevelt badges galore adorn the coats of men on the streets. They are men who do the voting and the leaders would not attempt to run counter to popular sentiment.

THE TARIFF PLANK.

The tariff plank which bears the stamp of President Roosevelt's approval and which will probably be adopted by the convention, is as follows: "Protection, which guards and develops our industries is the cardinal policy of the Republican party. We insist on the maintenance of this principle, but we recognize that particular schedules are neither sacred nor immutable. Present duties must be altered, readjusted, when arranged conditions and public interest demand their attention. But this work cannot be safely committed to any other hands than those of friends of protection."

CONVENTION OPENS.

Chicago, Ill., June 21.—The Republican convention was called to order at 12:10 p. m. with prayer by Rev. Timothy P. Frost, of Illinois.

Hon. Elihu Root, of New York, was selected temporary chairman of the convention.

A REPRESENTATIVE CROWD.

The convention is pronounced one of the largest and most representative that ever assembled. It is composed of some of the greatest and most distinguished men in the nation, and there are big people from every section of the country.

There is the greatest enthusiasm everywhere, and the victory of the Republican party in November seems to be a foregone conclusion with all of them. There was a demand for many more seats than there were to dispose of.

BULLETINS.

1:25 p. m.—Temporary Chairman Root has just concluded his speech.

1:33 p. m.—The convention adopts the rules of the last Republican convention.

1:40 p. m.—Convention resolves to seat delegates from Porto Rico and two from the Philippines, with two votes in each delegation.

1:58 p. m.—Convention makes temporary officers permanent without dissenting vote.

2 p. m.—Root concluded at 12:30. His reference to the departed Hanna brought the entire convention to its feet and his concluding words, which named Roosevelt, was the signal for an enthusiastic demonstration. On motion of Foraker, of Ohio, the convention seated delegates from Porto Rico and the Philippines. The roll of states and territories was then called for and members of standing committees of the convention.

2:15 p. m.—The convention adjourned at 2:10 until tomorrow noon.

DEATH IN GRAVES.

Miss Nora Alderdice, of near Lynnville, died of consumption. She was about 26 years old.

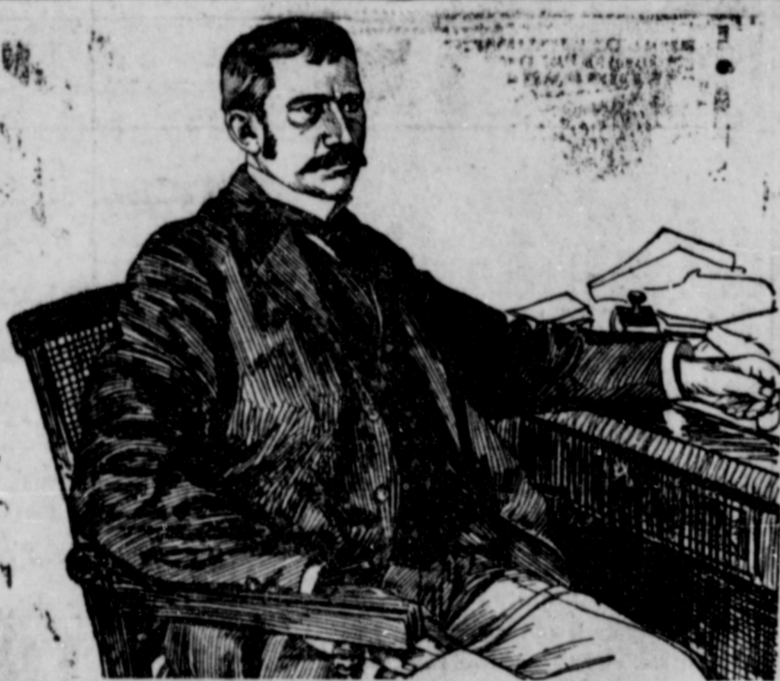

The wife of Oscar Thomas died at her home in Wingo of consumption. She was a daughter of Hayden Brown, 30 years of age and left four children.

FISTICUFF TODAY.

Mr. W. K. Poage, the clothier, and Hub Sullivan, a clerk employed in the El Guthrie store, got into an argument this morning shortly before noon which ended in a fight. Both have been warranted and will be given a hearing before Judge Sanders tomorrow morning.

A FALSE ALARM.

The workmen who thought he found the body of an infant in the Jefferson street sewer yesterday was mistaken, the object being the accumulation of a lot of paper and other refuse matter which had stuck together.

EX-SECRETARY OF WAR ELIHU ROOT.

TEMPORARY SECRETARY OF THE CONVENTION.

OVER A STEER

CONTRACTOR TERRELL WON A CASE IN JUDGE LIGHTFOOT'S COURT.

This morning the case of Ellis Jones, colored, against E. O. Terrell, the contractor, was tried before County Judge R. T. Lightfoot and a decision rendered in favor of the defendant.

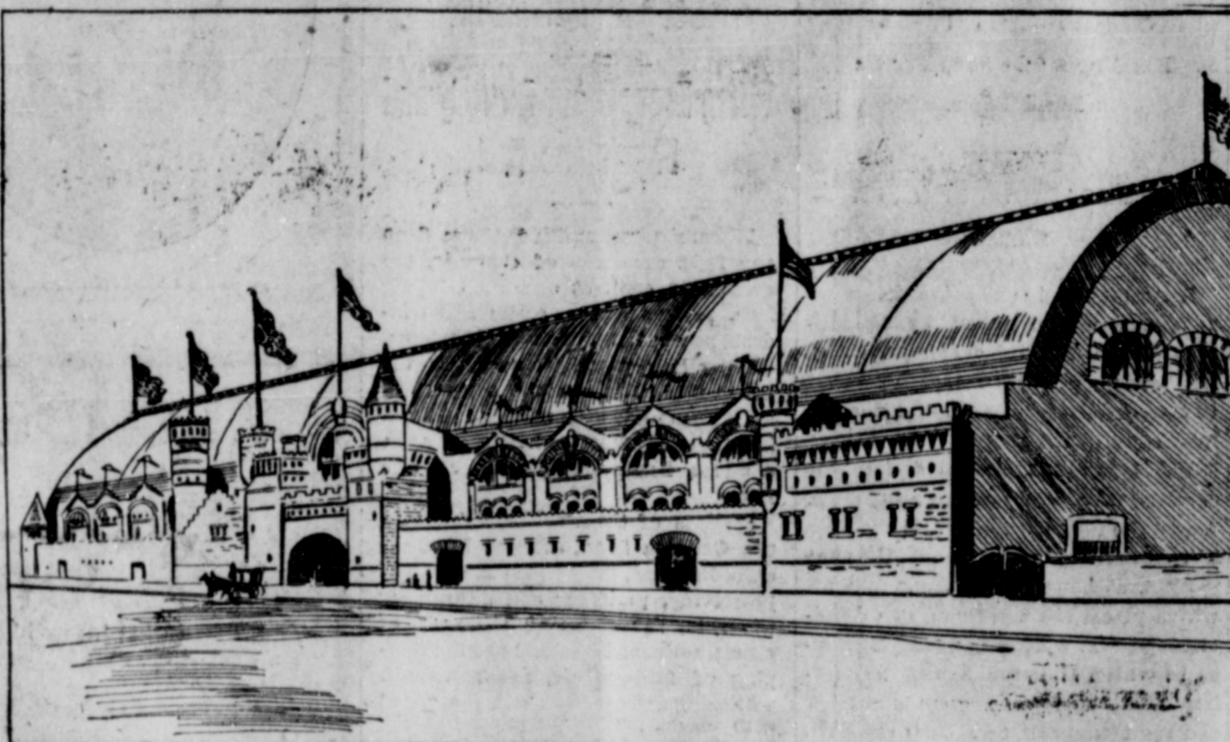

Terrell bought a steer and kept it on his farm to fatten. Jones lost a steer and claimed the one Mr. Terrell had was his. He came to Paducah from near Hazelwood and claimed the steer, and in an ensuing argument Terrell knocked him in the head with a stick.

Jones sued for the steer and this morning lost the case. He still has a case pending for damages against Terrell for striking him with the stick.

STEAMER LOST

CHINESE SHIP GOES DOWN BUT NO DETAILS ARE GIVEN.

London, June 21.—A dispatch from Foo Chow says that the Chinese Steamer Haeschin was lost but no details were given. It is feared there will prove to be serious fatalities.

CHICAGO COLISEUM, SCENE OF THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION.

FATAL SHOOTING

FORMER MAYFIELD MAN SHOT IN HICKMAN COUNTY.

Phillip White shot and killed James Edwards at Oakton, Hickman county, Saturday night in a dispute over an alley running between their residences.

The two men rented from the same landlord and one stable was used jointly. The wives of the men got into a dispute over the alley, each bidding the other to use it which finally terminated in a quarrel and the shooting. It is alleged that Edwards drew a knife on White who shot in self defense. Both men have families and are poor. The body of Edwards has been buried at Mayfield, where he formerly lived.

THE MARKET HOUSE PROJECT UP AGAIN

Board of Public Works Must Decide Time for Building.

The Boards of the General Council Cannot Agree on the Time.

PAVING ON THIRD STREET

The board of public works will tomorrow night decide whether or not to build the market house this year. Not desiring to settle it, the board a short time ago asked the sense of the general council.

The aldermen voted to build next year, and the council last night voted to build this year.

It is thus up to the board of public works to decide the question itself. It is not predicted what will be done, but the general opinion is that the work should be done this year. There is considerable opposition to spending $25,000 for a market house but this is the amount appropriated and the money cannot be used for any other purpose. The only argument offered for not building this year is that the butchers don't want it built this year, but the building is intended for the public, not the butchers, and everybody else seems to want it done as soon as possible.

The board of public works is apparently willing to do whatever the council wants done about paving Third street. Last night on motion of one of the councilmen the street was ordered paved.

"When we made out recommendation for the streets to be paved this year," remarked a member of the board this year, "we did not think it advisable to do any work on Third street, and put it in our recommendation only at the request of the council. If they want it done, however, we are willing. We think they should know what they are doing, however. It will cost somewhere near $4,000 a block or about $40,000 for the whole job, and the property owners up that street will have to pay half. Some of them seem to think there will be no cost at all attached so far as they are concerned."

The board of public works claims that no ordinance can be passed for public improvements unless recommended by the board, but attorneys who have looked up the law deny this. There is a provision of the first class charter to this effect, but none for the second, they claim.

BOTE HAD BLOODY SHIRTS.

Fred Upinhouse and Henry Kelley, white, had a fight yesterday afternoon near Tenth and Caldwell streets and much blood was spilled. The two were arrested this morning by Officers Hurley and Hessian and both wore very bloody shirts. They will be given a hearing tomorrow morning before Judge Sanders.

JUDGE LIGHTFOOT

TO TRY DIMINUTIVE TAILOR FOR LUNACY.

Fred Helyer, the widgeon tailor, who got drunk last week and after stealing some timber, several chairs and benches and later jumped into the river and refused to come out because the police were following him, will be tried for lunacy.

Helyer after concluding the above performance, was arrested and placed in the lockup until he could get sober, and the very day he was released stole a bicycle. This lead the court to believe the man is insane and suggested that he be tried for lunacy.

The trial will be held at the convenience of County Judge Lightfoot.

ELMER DOVER, SECRETARY OF THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

FOR ALLEGED THEFT.

Hattie McClain, colored, has been arrested on the charge of stealing a lot of wearing apparel from the home of Mr. George Robertson, the ice dealer.

Mr. M. Rosenblatt went to Dixon Springs today at noon.

The Indians checked their rapid descent down the percentage column yesterday afternoon by victory over the Blue Birds at Wallace park grounds.

"Red" Violet was ill and out of the game and Harley came out of left garden to do honors at the initial tag. He did nicely. Freeman looked after left garden admirably and the other positions were regularly filled except right garden which was occupied by McGil, Barlow being benched for lack talk to Captain Gilligan.

The game belonged to neither team and was hard fought to the end of the ninth inning.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Bob Freeman, the Paducah twirler, is that if Nashville or Little Rock he him he knows nothing about it. He will go anywhere he is sold, but does not dislike Paducah. He is a quiet disposition and plays ball for every one alike. When working behind a man in the field he lets no petty spite or ill feeling interfere with his work, but plays all there is in him for the victory. Paducah fans would hate to see Freeman go even if he did get into faster company, which he deserves.

Gerard will pitch today, McGil being sick and Brady not being well. Freeman pitched his turn Saturday and is not billed for pitching again until his regular turn. Gerard's wing is good and he will doubtless pitch an excellent game. Gerard pitched for Owensboro last year an 18 inning game 1 to 0 against Gill Edwards, of the Hopkinton team, and is a pitcher of some ability. He was developed at third base.

There has been some little "ragging" among the local baseball players due to a breach of discipline on the ball field and it is hoped this will not occur again. Gilligan directs his men and his orders should be obeyed, even if it means a put out to the runner.

Violet is full of malaria and was ill yesterday and today. The boys all threw in and got him a buzz fan, his room being uncomfortably warm. Violet is a favorite with all the boys and his absence from the Indian's lineup is felt, although Harley is no novice at the first bag.

Sunday morning the Golconda baseball team will run an excursion to Paducah and will meet the L. A. L. team here at Wallace park in a match game. The Illinois team is said to be strong and the game will be interesting.

Pat Downing, who caught for Henderson yesterday, is from Frankfort, where Land came from, but is not the catcher the "Big Man" is. Downing was "tried out" by the Louisville American Association League team the first of the season.

Arthur Van, who played here at The Kentucky the latter part of the season and at Wallace Park Casino, also, will probably play the field with Paducah. He played one game at Cairo with Clarksville recently.

McGil's hit saved the game yesterday. The Louisville boy hit well yesterday although ill. McGil is still sick and not really able to play ball. Freeman played a good left field yesterday. Freeman can field with any pitcher in the league.

Harley is hitting like a fiend. He has just lately got his eye on the ball and is himself again.

Violet is better today and will be able to be in the game again in a day or two.

MANY FIGHTS

About 22 Matches May be Pulled Off July 4th.

Local Sports Don't Want to Fight
For Less Than $10 a Match.

According to reports, one of the biggest cock fights ever held in this section will be pulled off across the river July 4th. The present indications are that about 22 matches will be held that day, and elaborate preparations are being made for them.

Local owners of fighting cocks will be on hand, as will several from other places, a number being from up about Crayonsville, Ky.

It is claimed by some of the most prominent local owners of fighting cocks, however, that they will have nothing to do with the reported mains, and don't think any are to be held.

"Those Crayonsville men," said one today, "want to fight for $5 a match, but we told them we would not fight any more for less than $10 a match with $25 side bets. They have been coming down here and fighting for $5 a side and as a good game chicken is worth that we can't afford to put one up for it, so we have been putting up scrubs, which they kill. They know they can't whip any of our best chickens, and won't fight for anything worth going out after, so we are going to cut them out."

FOR BREACH OF THE PEACE.

Charles Johnson and George Winfrey, colored, had a fight this morning and were locked up. They will be tried in police court tomorrow morning.

IMPROVEMENTS TO THE I. C. SHOPS

A Tank Shop May be Built Soon.

The Company Also Contemplates
Building a Tin Shop For Its Local Force.

WILL ENLARGE THE SHOPS

Important and extensive improvements are contemplated by the Illinois Central to the local shops, which will mean an expenditure of many thousands of dollars and the further enlargement of the shops.

The officials are considering the erection of a tank overhauling shop. Tanks are now overhauled in the open air, and at any place about the shop yards that happens to be convenient, which places the workmen at a disadvantage. If a shop building is erected in which the tanks can be overhauled, it will save time and labor and the tanks can be gotten out with much more dispatch. If built the shop will be located back of the mill building and west of the transfer table.

Another improvement talked of and which will likely be built, is a tin shop. At present all tin work is done in a small room located in the shed department of the shop next to the scrap iron bins and the workmen are put at an inconvenience. The new tin shop would be a valuable and essential improvement to the shops.

The transfer table will also be remodeled and an electrical apparatus put in to run the table. The table now is 55 feet long and accommodated the engine with tank attached. The tanks are not pulled into the machine shops now and the length of the table will be cut to 35 feet giving room for other improvements at the south west end of the table. The work of repairing and installing the electrical apparatus will begin soon, it is said.

The company will before winter set in to build a big hot water reservoir to be used in cleansing engine boilers. In every other shop where boilers are cleaned the exhaust steam from the many pipes is turned into a reservoir and the hot water used in washing the boilers. Here an average of ten boilers a day are washed and the tank must be built in proportion to the number of boilers to be washed. This will require a tank with a capacity of 250,000 gallons, which will be emptied by the work here at least four times a day. Fresh water is turned into the tank and the impounding of steam keeps the water nearly at boiling point.

Mr. H. McCourt, assistant general superintendent of southern lines of the Illinois Central and Mr. J. G. Neuffer, assistant general superintendent of machinery, left the city yesterday for Memphis after an inspection of the local shops. Mr. McCourt had been here over a week, making Paducah his temporary headquarters during the boiler makers' strike.

UNIQUE SUICIDE

INDIAN ELECTRICIAN ELECTRO-
CUTES HIMSELF.

Crawfordsville, Ind., June 21.—Charles Kailer, who graduated from Purdue university two weeks ago, and who took employment immediately with the Northwestern Traction company as electrician, committed suicide. The young man stripped himself of clothing, lay down on a crosscut saw, wrapped one end of a feed wire about one wrist and then with a pair of pliers took hold of the live wire. Except for the perfect connections he made the current would not have been strong enough to have killed him. Kailer came from Napierville, Ill.

NEW MARKET HOUSE ORDERED BUILT

Council Does Not Concur in Aldermanic Action.

Third Street Reconstruction Ordered By the Board Last Night.

OTHER BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS

The councilmanic board, at its regular meeting last night, ordered that the new market house be built this year, that Third street be reconstructed this year, and passed the ordinance providing for the removal of poles from all streets hereafter reconstructed. The wires may be either placed underground or run through the alleys, street car wires not affected.

Councilman Riglesberger was the only member absent.

Contractor John Lane was allowed $1,249 for building the culvert on Jefferson street just beyond Fountain avenue.

A portion of the officials' expense, incurred in the recent trip to St. Louis to inspect street work, was allowed.

An allowance of $13,000 was made for street work and bond interest.

Mayor Yeiser filed a report to the effect that notice had been served on him for several more damage suits filed against the city by persons worked on the chain gang.

Solicitor Puryear was ordered to investigate the matter of second class cities renting armories for the militia companies, Mayor Yeiser believing that under second class charters the city does not have to rent an armory.

The appointment of Colonel James Ezell as back poll tax collector was ratified.

The compromise for less than $400 with the Western Union Telegraph Co. made by Attorney Campbell Flournoy was not ratified by the board. He agreed to collect the tax for 50 per cent and it was found the company owed $745.

A specimen of the bonds to be issued for street, hospital and market house was presented by the Western German bank of Cincinnati, with a request that this bond be adopted by ordinance. An ordinance was later brought in adopting this bond.

First passage was given an ordinance providing for lights on automobiles at night, a whistle or bell which must be rung at every street crossing and that automobiles shall not be run at a greater speed than eight miles an hour in the city limits.

First passage was given the ordinance providing for an automatic gate for the N., C. and St. L. at 11th and Norton instead of 12th and Norton streets.

The application to open Bachman street was referred to the board of public works.

The saloon license of C. E. Clacknell at Ninth and Washington street, was transferred to Reynolds and Reynolds.

It was ordered that the board of public works have a dry well built at the Home of the Friendless into which the refuse water of that institution shall be drained. At present the water is drained into the gutter in front of the house. The well shall be kept clean at the city's expense.

The board of public works was ordered to enlarge or build a new drainage culvert at the Baumer fill if necessary. The residents threaten to sue the city because of the present culvert being too small to let the rain water out. It is estimated the culvert will cost about $1,600.

The board of public works was ordered to bring in a measure compelling the removal of all telegraph or telephone poles on streets hereafter reconstructed into alleysways or to bury the wires, the street car company poles being excepted. The car company is excepted because it would cost $75,000 to bury their wires.

The council failed to place the matter of buying new fire horses into the hands of the fire commissioners, voting that this matter be referred to the fire committee.

The council ordered the board of public works to immediately secure plans and specifications for the new market house and to begin building it this year. The aldermanic board voted at the last meeting to wait until next year to build the market house.

The board of public works was instructed to buy a new and larger garbage dump to be moored in the river. It was unanimously decided to pave Third street from Kentucky avenue to Broad street with vitrified brick.

Councilman Taylor suggested that an ordinance be drawn compelling all property owners to put down granite pavements when new streets are built and there being no second the matter was not acted on.

The council then adjourned to meet again just before the aldermanic board Thursday night when it is desired to finally adopt several ordinances to prevent delay in the higher board.

CHOSE LIBRARIAN

Carnegie Library Board Held Meeting Last Night.

Miss Mamie Baynham Librarian and Miss Ruby Corbett Assistant.

At a meeting of the Carnegie library trustees last night, at the library building, Miss Mamie Baynham was elected librarian, and Miss Ruby Corbett, assistant.

Miss Baynham is connected with the dry goods establishment of Rudy, Phillips & Company. She is in every way qualified for the position and her selection was a good one. Miss Corbett is the daughter of the late Thomas Corbett, and is a bright and competent young woman. The salary of the librarian is $50 per month and that of the assistant $25. The salaries are to be increased later.

Mr. Gleason was elected janitor, with a salary of $40 per month. Plans for concrete walks were received and it was ordered that bids at once be advertised for.

The book committee today sent the list of books selected to publishing houses for bids.

There is some dispute about the boundary between the library property and that of Grace Episcopal church which adjoins it. Mayor D. A. Yeiser, Messrs. George Wallace and Harry Savage were appointed a committee to have the matter adjusted.

REV. BRIGGS LOSES OHIO PASTORATE

He Failing to Keep Dates to Preach, on Trial.

Cleveland Church Calls off Its Selection of a Former Paducah Pastor.

NOW LIVES IN LOUISVILLE

Since Rev. G. W. Briggs, formerly pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, left Paducah very little has been heard of him. The following however, will be of interest in Paducah: Cleveland, O., June 21—The Rev. George Waverly Briggs, of Louisville, Ky., will not become pastor of the Franklin avenue Congregational church here. He was a candidate for the position and three weeks ago made arrangements to preach a trial sermon. At the last minute he wired the congregation that he could not come, as his child was very sick. Sunday week he promised to preach and again at the last minute word was received stating that Dr. Briggs had been injured in an accident. The congregation expected him last Sunday, and when the news came that he was unable to fill the pulpit, due to his physician's order, the church members decided not to consider him any longer as a candidate for pastor.

KENTUCKY WOMAN

Meets a Former Domestic After Fifty Years.

Mrs. Will S. Hays Accidentally Runs Across an Old Acquaintance.

A happy incident, illustrating the possibilities of renewing old acquaintances during the World's Fair had its culmination Friday evening at the Southern hotel, when Mrs. Will S. Hays, of Louisville, Ky., met Mrs. Anna Burke, of this city, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Nearly fifty years had elapsed since they met. The meeting was accidental. Mrs. Hays had been in the city most of the week attending the ceremonies in connection with the dedication of the Kentucky building. She is the wife of Colonel Will S. Hays, poet and author, and while here called on a number of friends of her husband.

Among those whom she met was Stephen Burke, who is engaged in business at the Levee and Washington avenue. In the course of their conversation Mr. Burke remarked that his parents were from Louisville, having left there soon after their marriage. Mrs. Hays said she had very pleasant girlhood recollections of a former employe of her father's home, who married a man named Burke and came to St. Louis. She asked Mr. Burke if he had ever heard his mother speak of the family of James McCullough of Louisville. "Why, yes," replied Mr. Burke, "she was once a domestic in Mr. McCullough's family." When Mrs. Hays learned this she arranged a meeting during which the parties pleasantly discussed old associations.

The Burke's since moving to St. Louis have become wealthy. Mr. and Mrs. McCullough are still living, the former being 87 years of age. Mrs. Hays returned to her home yesterday morning.

Mrs. Jack Houser arrived from Fulton this morning.

THE DARK TOBACCO CROP WILL BE SHORT

A Decrease of Thirty Per Cent is Expected.

Labor Is Short on the Farm According to the Government Report.

BURLEY TO BE INCREASED

The crop report issued by the United States department of agriculture, gives the following regarding tobacco conditions:

The Hopkinsville district reports a decrease of 20 to 25 per cent. The season is backward and the weather has been cool and dry until the recent rains afforded opportunity for planting a large proportion of the crop. Plants are scarce and very small. Labor deserting farms for cotton fields, mines, quarries and railroad work, thus leaving the tobacco planters short of help. There is a widespread discontent on the part of planters on account of low prices, the large quantity of tobacco still unsold and the unsatisfactory labor conditions.

The Clarksville district shows a decrease in acreage of 25 to 30 per cent. Henderson district, decrease of 25 per cent to 30 per cent.

Paducah district, decrease of 35 to 40 per cent.

Taking average of all dark districts in Kentucky, the decrease amounts to fully 30 per cent and it is about the same in Tennessee.

The high price of burley will cause a small increase in that crop.

Judge E. B. Drake, of Russellville, Ky., who has been here the past several days with the view of locating, has formed a partnership with Attorney W. V. Eaton and the name of the firm will hereafter be Eaton & Drake.

your own affair, of course, but still a crime to put a drug into your stomach that may upset your nervous system and bring on all kinds of ails such as the coffee drinker usually knows. The result may be only a slight form of dyspepsia, or it may be organic heart or kidney trouble or nervous prostration, for science has proved that the drugs in coffee DIRECTLY attack the nerves, stomach, heart and kidneys. If the nervous trouble ends in sore eyes or piles don't be surprised for coffee has been PROVED to be the cause of these and other obscure troubles.

in coffee's place to days of a rebuilding agent that is positively ALL FOOD and not at all a drug usually shows big results for the better and that's just POSTUM'S job—to rebuild all the broken down nerve cells in brain and nerve centres. The trial is pleasant, for well boiled POSTUM has the fine color and suggests the flavor of the highest grade of Old Government Java and when served with rich cream is simply delicious. In a few days the old coffee ails disappear and you find you have come to like delicious POSTUM for its own flavor and for the satisfied, well-fed feeling that follows the use of this true food drink. (Made of purest cereals only.)

is always in POSTUM'S favor for the reason that after 10 days or so the most fastidious will not miss the coffee, for POSTUM has entirely taken its place so far as the palate goes and Body, Brain and Nerves feel as if you have taken a new lease on life, a taste of the delicious glow of health that cannot possibly come so long as a destroying agent like coffee is made a part of the daily diet. No matter how well you feel if you drink coffee, you will feel better if you cut the coffee and drink well-boiled POSTUM in its place. Possibly you would like a taste of

The Verdict

The Joy of Living Then Put Aside the Drug-Drink for a Short While and Try POSTUM and even 10 days trial will show really big improvement, for there is a great, grand message to humanity in POSTUM and it will not take long to show even in the worst, sickest, broken-down coffee toper. Don't sit on the fence and howl "Nonsense, coffee don't hurt me, why I've drank it all my life," but make a little trial that will prove something. If you say like thousands of others "coffee don't hurt" you are only guessing.

The reward is BIG if you do find out you're wrong, and 10 days trial of POSTUM of $260, being the amount of said pole tax for the years 1903-1904. The same to be in full satisfaction of said city's claim for franchise taxes, for license taxes, and for taxes on the telegraph poles, during all past years, and also for the current year of 1904.

"3. The city of Paducah hereby agrees that it will hereafter, during the existence of this contract, accept said annual tax upon the tangible property of the Western Union Telegraph Co. and the payment of $1 upon each of its telegraph poles as aforesaid, in full satisfaction of all taxes to be paid by said company, and that it will not, during the existence of this contract, either assess or levy against said telegraph company any additional tax by way of license or franchise."

It developed last night that the amount the city claims the Western Union owes it for back pole license is $745, as shown by figures furnished by former Clerk Patterson. Yet this attorney suggests that the city of Paducah accept $260 (the city to give him half), for this $745, for the $100 license due the city this year and for franchise taxes due—or more explicitly, "in full satisfaction of said city's claim for franchise taxes, for license taxes and for taxes on the telegraph poles during all past years, and also for the current year of 1904."

It is not only for past years, it will be seen, but for the money due the city this year for franchise tax, pole tax, and license tax, the latter alone being $100. When the attorney got his half the city would have the large and beautiful sum of $130 left to represent the $745 due for back pole tax, the franchise tax for this year and past years, which amounts to only a few dollars, however, and the $100 annual license.

But this is not all. The compromise the city was asked to ratify makes the same basis of settlement effective for three years more—until 1907. During those three years the city would have found had it accepted the compromise, that it could get only $1 on each of the company's 130 poles, and that this $130 would have to represent the $100 license, the franchise tax, and the pole tax. It is not known whether the attorney would have wanted half of this $130 collected in the next three years, or not, under his contract to get half of what he got. He was authorized to settle for only the pole tax and, has attempted to settle for also the franchise and the license tax.

No wonder the Western Union wanted to compromise! The other companies are fighting this license of $1 a pole, but the Western Union comes forward and wants to compromise! Compromise how? Why, by getting a three year contract with the city to pay $130 a year for franchise, license and pole tax. Most any of them would like to do it. And possibly the others would have been given a chance if this neat little skin game had gone through as well as it is at first promised.

The council deserves credit for getting next. The city should collect all that is coming to it. If it is entitled to a $1 license on poles in the city, it should collect the dollar and keep it, not give half of it away to some one for doing what we already have paid city officials to do.

SLIDING SCALE OF LICENSES.
Louisville is to have a city ordinance establishing a sliding scale of licenses for professional men. Those whose incomes are $3,000 or under will have to pay a license of about $10 a year, and those whose incomes are above will have to pay at the rate of about $10 for every $1,000 over $3,000. The ordinance promises to cause a legal fight, but the opinion of most of the prominent lawyers interviewed seems to indicate that the law will be constitutional and be sustained by the courts.

The old howl of "class legislation" will probably be raised, but attorneys claim it will not be class legislation. They allege that if a man earns $10,000 in a community he should pay towards the support of the government a larger license than a man in a similar business who earns only $1,000 or $5,000; just as a man who owns $10,000 worth of property is required to pay more taxes than the one with $1,000 or $5,000 worth of property. Paducah now has a similar sliding scale of licenses for merchants, those with a small business paying a small amount a year, and those with a big business a big license, the license being based on the number of clerks their business justifies. Those whose business requires only a few clerks, thus do not have to pay as much as those who have a business requiring perhaps a dozen or more, and in this way the big men and concerns in a city pay a larger proportion of the license revenue than the small ones.

WHY NOT HERE?
A short time ago the board of public works decided to try oil on the streets of Paducah as a preservative and dust settler. It is regretted that nothing further has been heard of the experiment and is to be hoped that the matter will be taken up at once.

A Lexington, Ky., dispatch indicates that oil there has proven highly satisfactory and when all the streets are oiled will make Lexington the only city in the country free from dust. The dispatch adds:
"The city has completed the oiling of 66 blocks of the city streets, and the innovation has proved such a success that contracts will be let for the remaining four miles to be oiled in the same way, so as to complete the circuit of the entire city. When the remaining streets are oiled there will be absolutely no dust in the city and Lexington will have the distinction of being the first city in the United States to be free from dust by such a process."

It seems useless to attempt to fix the responsibility for great disasters. When one occurs the outraged public begins to look about for some one to vent its wrath on. In the Slocum disaster it is claimed the life preservers were worthless and the boat unsafe. The steamboat men retort: "If they were it is up to the inspectors. They inspected the boat and said it was all right." This is the same thing that happened in Chicago after the Iroquois disaster. It was claimed the theater was unsafe, inadequately equipped, and not in accordance with the building ordinance. The reply was: "The building was inspected by paid officials and allowed to open." If those whose duty it is to see that the public is protected in such matters would faithfully perform that duty, a great many lives would be saved.

In Japan they don't ask a public officer to resign. They suggest that he commit suicide, which often precludes unpleasant complications. Admiral Kaminuri, who allowed Japanese transports to fall into the hands of the Russians, has been accused of dodging the enemy and has been notified, according to reports, that Japanese honor demands that he commit suicide. It must be pleasant to hold office in Japan!

Those who do not approve of bathing as a hygienic practice should have the tact to keep it to themselves. A Chicago doctor who disapproves of it and boasts that he has not indulged in six years, has been severely censured and threatened with expulsion from the National Eclectic Medical association. Possibly the medical thought that even if the bath is not good for us a doctor who knows it ought to be the last to tell it.

An effort is being made to induce Bandit Raisuli to come to the world's fair as an exhibit, but there are probably enough robbers there now, not counting the hoodlums.

Several Persons Who Had Refused Arraigned in Court.

Walter Sullivan Fined $20 For Throwing a Brick—Street Car Fight Investigated.

OTHER POLICE COURT NEWS

Walter Sullivan, white, got drunk last night and in a frenzied state of mind hurled a brick through the partition doors of the Sam Gott saloon on North Fourth street. Judge Sanders fined him $20 and full costs this morning.

The cases against Mr. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, Mr. Tucker, Will Resington, Will Ferguson and Albert Perry, all residents of South Third street in the vicinity of the smallpox in that end of the city, were arraigned for not having their children vaccinated or not undergoing the operation themselves. Several produced certificates that they had been vaccinated while others wanted time to get vaccinated and Judge Sanders continued the case until tomorrow. Those who held certificates were dismissed.

Joe Chenell, white, who runs a stand on market, drew his knife on some fellow on market, it is alleged, and this morning was fined $3 and costs on motion of the prosecuting attorney.

Abe Marcoffski, the saloon keeper, was fined $10 and costs for keeping open his saloon on the Sabbath.

Fred Page and C. W. Hamilton, white, were fined $1 and costs each for drunkenness.

The two cases against George Brown, white, for a breach of the peace, were continued until tomorrow.

The breach of the peace case against Clark Watson, white, was continued until tomorrow morning.

Frank McMannus and John Doyle white, who had a fight on a street car Sunday afternoon late, were fined in police court this morning. McMannus was using profane language on the car in hearing of Mrs. Doyle and Doyle tried to make him stop only to receive more abuse, it is stated. He thrashed the young man and was this morning fined $5. McMannus was fined $20 and costs, the costs against both to be divided.

New Use for Electricity.

A new game has been recently devised which is in reality electric bat-tledore and shuttlecock. The two players each hold a wand which has been electrified by friction. The shuttlecock is represented by a butterfly made of colloidion. The latter is thrown into the air, and as it is approached by either of the wands it is repelled by electrical action and goes skimming through the air away from the wand. In this way the butterfly is sent hither and thither without being touched.

Salvation Army GI- in Luck.

Joe P. Kerr and James Leslie, two wealthy oil men of Bradford, Pa., sat in the lobby of a hotel in Lima, O., the other evening when a Salvation Army girl came in and passed her tambourine. "I'll chip in $5, Jim," said John. "Go you, Jack," said James. They began tossing $5 bills into the tambourine in turn, then wrote checks for the same amount until the tambourine held $500. "Guess that's enough, Jack; let's stop," said James. "Go you, Jim," said John, and they adjourned.

Squirrel Disables Engine.

A half dozen men worked all one day in a Greenwood (Me.) mill recently trying to get it started, and two of them continued the next day. In despair they took the engine to pieces, inside the cylinder were several quarts of nuts, bits of bark and other fine stuff. A squirrel had gone in through the exhaust pipe and had discovered an excellent place for a winter storehouse.

BATTERED HULK IS MOORED HERE

Capt. Cofflin's Prediction Verified Yesterday.

Several Thousand Dollars Will Be Necessary to Repair the Chattanooga.

WILL GO ON THE WAYS

The wreck of the steamer Chattanooga was brought in early last evening by the tow boats that had been pumping on her, and is now moored at the foot of Washington street, ready to go on the ways.

The big steamer seems in a bad way, and it looks as if it were impossible to raise a boat in such a fix, but she was. She is covered with the rough timbers used to bulkhead her, and with a canvas that almost completely envelopes her.

The steamer, as told yesterday, was floated before noon, and was towed here for repairs. She will be hauled out on the ways, and it is claimed made as good as new. It is not known how much it cost to raise her, but it is claimed about $2,000. It will cost five or six thousand, at least to put her in good condition.

The Chattanooga, it will be remembered, was sunk at Big Chain several weeks ago by running on to the rocks, and most of the river men who saw her predicted she would be a total loss. She was running in the Paducah and Chattanooga trade, and most of her $2,500 cargo was saved.

Captain Sam Cofflin, of the Cincinnati Underwriters, who held the $12,000 insurance on her, said from the first that the boat could be raised. "When Captain Cofflin says a boat can be raised," declared a prominent river man today, "you can count on it that she can. He is the best ever. He can tell every time, and while I was told by many experienced men who saw the wreck that it would be impossible to raise her, when I heard that Captain Cofflin said that she could, I concluded she would be raised—and there she is."

The insurance company will save several thousand dollars by raising the boat. The cargo has to pay half the expense of raising her, and the owners one third of the cost of putting her back in good shape. Had she not been raised it would have cost the underwriters $12,000. It will probably be several weeks before the boat is ready again to run.

MARION WANTS IN

ILLINOIS TOWN AMBITIOUS TO GET INTO K. I. T. LEAGUE.

Marion, Ill., wants to get into the K. I. T. league and is said to be located in such a position that patronage can be drawn from several towns nearby, all connected with electric railway. No franchise is for sale and in all probability Marion will not be able to get in the league this season.

NOTHING DONE

REMAINS OF J. M. ROBBINS MAY BE BURIED IN COUNTY GRAVEYARD.

No inquest has been held over the remains of J. M. Robbins, the old man who fell from a trestle and died from the injuries last Friday night. Coroner Paul is certain that death was due to accident, and as no one could be found who knew anything except that he was found under the trestle and died without becoming conscious, the coroner's records will show accidental death.

It was intended to take the body to the home of the deceased, Hanover, Ind., but thus far no arrangements have been made, and unless they are soon the body will be buried in the county graveyard.

FOUR TEACHERS TO GET CERTIFICATES

Six Out of Ten Failed to Pass Examination.

The Successful Ones Are to Get Grammar School Certificates.

THE FIRE ESCAPE QUESTION

Only four out of ten applicants for teachers certificates passed the examinations held last week by Prof. George O. McBroom and Frank B. May. The examinations were held for the purpose of giving all persons desirous of securing teachers certificates an opportunity to test their merits, and out of a total of five white teachers and nine colored, four of the latter dropping out the first day, leaving but ten regular applicants, four passed. They are Misses Hattie Newell and Virginia Johnson, white, and Mattie Anderson and Rena L. Tanner, colored. The white teachers will secure grammar school certificates while the colored teachers will secure primary grade certificates.

The board secretary is preparing to correspond with fire escape firms to secure fire escapes for the high school building. He will immediately call for bids on this improvement and will have the building equipped by the opening of next term.

FOOD'S WORK

SOMETIMES CURES THE INCURABLE.

A simple change of food worked a remarkable cure for a well known elderly lady of Rockford, Ill., a story that will interest many so-called "incurable" invalids. She says:

"I was taken ill in 1889 and in the succeeding years had eight different physicians, besides some who refused to take my case at all saying I was incurable.

"They variously diagnosed my case as indigestion, cancerous tumors, enlargement of the spleen, ulceration of the womb, etc., and although one of them was correct the looked for relief never came and I suffered intensely, sometimes in pain all over but most of the time my greatest agony was from pains in the left side lasting five or six hours at a time, which nothing but morphine would relieve. Life was a burden and many times I would have welcomed death.

"When the pain would leave my side it would go to my stomach or head and I spent many nights doubled up with pain and unable to sleep and as a consequence when I got up in the morning I would be so weak I would have to hold on to the furniture to get around the room.

"I tried many kinds of diet but none seemed to help me and when my husband suggested Grape-Nuts I thought it was foolish to suppose a 'breakfast food' could help me any, but as I finally got so I could eat nothing at all he finally got a package and insisted upon my trying it.

"To my surprise I found I could eat the Grape-Nuts food without any distress following. I ate the first package and got a second one. Before the second package was gone all the distress in my stomach had disappeared. That was two years ago and although I am now over 60 years of age my health is good and every trace of the terrible suffering is gone and I again enjoy life. My doctor advised me to keep on with the Grape-Nuts but said he feared I would soon grow tired of the flavor, but I eat my four teaspoonfuls every morning and still like it as well as ever, not only for the wonderful good it has brought me but because of its crisp, nutty flavor. You may give my name on request." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SCORES ANOTHER GREAT VICTORY IN GERMANY.

Prof. Dr. Linimer, director of the "Scientific Station for the Brewing Industry of Bavaria at Munich" upon analyzing "Pilsner Urquell," the beers of the "Bayerisches Brauhaus" of Pilsen, Bohemia, and "Anheuser-Busch's Budweiser," under date of May 17, 1904, makes the following statement sworn to before Dr. Pundter, Royal notary, and verified by Hon. James H. Worman, U. S. Consul General at Munich, Bavaria: "Upon subjecting the several beers to a careful analysis I find that the 'Budweiser Beer,' submitted by the Anheuser-Busch Brewing association, St. Louis, U. S. A., is very similar, in all its characteristics, to the finest and best Pilsener beers. It is effervescent, clear and sparkling, has a beautiful creamy foam and is possessed of a pure, wholesome taste and an exquisite hop flavor. Its keeping qualities by far exceed those of the Pilsener beers, resulting from the use of the very best materials in brewing and the thorough maturity of the product. The analysis further shows that no acids or other preservatives have been used in its production, and as a result of my examination I pronounce 'Budweiser' a well matured bottled beer of the highest quality." This acknowledgement, coming as it does from the recognized headquarters of the brewing industry of the old world, must be a great source of gratification and in a measure a compensation to the Anheuser-Busch people for their unceasing efforts to produce the finest beer that can be made.

Use Shoffner's Sure Cure

The Great Tonic and Blood Purifier—Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Catarrh.

It is a trite and true saying that the "blood is the life." Now where does the blood come from? Everybody knows, or should know, that it comes from the nutritive elements extracted by the stomach from the food we eat. If the digestive organs do not perform their functions by reason of disease germs, there is no nutrition extracted, and the food must better be thrown in the dump to decay and breed germs in the open air than to remain in the stomach and become a rotten, putrid mass, as it naturally does if there is no digestion. No disease germ can live and find lodgment in a human body that uses the Shoffner's Sure Cure. Price $1.00.

Rock-a-Bye Baby.

These are sweet words, but how much pain and suffering they used to mean. It's different now. Since Mother's Friend has become known expectant mothers have been spared much of the anguish of childbirth. Mother's Friend is a liniment to be applied externally. It is rubbed thoroughly into the muscles of the abdomen. It gives elasticity and strength, and when the final great strain comes they respond quickly and easily without pain. Mother's Friend is never taken internally. Internal remedies at this time do more harm than good. If a woman is supplied with this splendid liniment she need never fear rising or swelling breasts, morning sickness, or any of the discomforts which usually accompany pregnancy.

The proprietor of a large hotel in Tampa, Fla., writes: "My wife had an awful time with her first child. During her second pregnancy, Mother's Friend was used and the baby was born easily before the doctor arrived. It's certainly great."

The Blazed Trail

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1902, by Stewart Edward White

Besides the beans were fried salt pork, boiled potatoes, canned corn, mince pie, a variety of cookies and doughnuts, and strong green tea. Thorpe found himself eating ravenously of the crude fare.

That evening he underwent a catechism, a few practical jokes, which he took good naturedly, and a vast deal of chaffing. At 9 o'clock the lights were all out. By daylight he and a dozen other men were at work hewing a road that had to be as smooth and level as a New York boulevard.

Thorpe and four others were set to work on this road, which was to be cut through a creek bottom leading, he was told, to "seventeen." He learned to use a double bladed ax.

From shortly after daylight he worked. Four other men bore him company, and twice Radway himself came by, watched their operations for a moment and moved on without comment. After Thorpe had caught his second wind he enjoyed his task, finding a certain pleasure in the ease with which he handled his tool.

At the end of an interminable period a faint, musical hum swelled, echoed and died through the forest, beautiful as a spirit. It was taken up by another voice and repeated. Then by another. Now near at hand, now far away, it rang as hollow as a bell. The sawyers, the swamper, the skidders and the team men turned and put on their heavy blanket coats.

Down on the road Thorpe heard it, too, and wondered what it might be.

"Come on, bub. She means crew," explained old man Heath kindly. Thorpe resumed his coat and fell in behind the little procession. After a short time he came upon a horse and sledge. Beyond it the cook had built a little camp fire, around and over which he had grouped big fifty pound lard tins half full of hot things to eat. Each man as he approached picked up a tin plate and cup from a pile near at hand.

The cook was plainly master of the situation. He issued peremptory orders. When Erickson, the blond Swede, attempted surreptitiously to appropriate a doughnut the youth turned on him savagely and shouted:

"Get out of that, you big towhead!" The men ate, perched in various attitudes and places. Thorpe found it difficult to keep warm. The violent exercise had heated him through, and now the north country cold penetrated to his bones. He huddled close to the fire and drank hot tea, but it did not do him very much good. In his secret mind he resolved to buy one of the blanket mackinaws that very evening. The newcomer's first day of hard work had tired him completely. He was ready for nothing so much as his bunk. But he had forgotten that it was Saturday night. His status was still to assure.

"I don't know which of you boys is coming first," said he quietly.

They began with a few mild tricks. Shuffle the brogan followed hot back. Thorpe took all of it good naturedly. Finally a tall individual with a thin, white face, a reptilian forehead, red-dish hair and long, baboon arms suggested tossing in a blanket. Thorpe looked at the low ceiling and declined.

"I'm with the game as long as you can say, boys," said he, "and I'll have as much fun as anybody, but that's going too far for a tired man."

The reptilian gentleman let out a string of oaths whose meaning might be translated, "We'll see about that!" Thorpe was a good boxer, but he knew by now the lumber jacks' method of fighting—anything to hurt the other fellow. And in a genuine, old fashioned, knock-down-and-drag-out rough and tumble your woodsman is about the toughest customer to handle you will be likely to meet. He is brought up on fighting. Nothing pleases him better than to get drunk and, with a few companions, to embark in an earnest effort to "clean out" a rival town. And he will accept cheerfully punishment enough to kill three ordinary men.

Thorpe at the first hostile movement sprang back to the door, seized one of the three-foot billets of hard wood intended for the stove and faced his opponents.

"I don't know which of you boys is coming first," said he quietly, "but he is going to get it good and plenty."

If the affair had been serious these men would never have recoiled before the mere danger of a stick of hard wood. But this was a good natured bit of foolery, a test of nerve, and there was no object in getting a broken head for that. The reptilian gentleman alone grumbled something profane.

"If you hanker for trouble so much," drawled the unexpected voice of old Jackson from the corner, "maybe you could put on the gloves."

The rest was fierce. Thorpe was built on true athletic lines—broad, straight shoulders, narrow flanks, long, clean, smooth muscles. He possessed, besides, that hereditary toughness and bulk which no gymnasium will ever quite supply. The other man, while powerful and ugly in his rushes, was clumsy and did not use his head. Thorpe planted his hard, straight blows at will. Finally he saw his opening and let out with a swinging pivot blow. The other picked himself out of a corner and drew off the gloves. Thorpe's status was assured.

"The young fellow's all right," observed Heath. "He cuffed Ben up to a peak all right."

"Went down like a peck of wet fish nets," replied Jackson tranquilly.

CHAPTER V.

IN the office shanty one evening about a week later Radway and his scaler happened to be talking over the situation. The scaler, whose name was Dyer, slouched back in the shadow watching his great honest superior as a crafty, dainty cat might watch the blunderings of a St. Bernard. Dyer had a precise little black mustache, whose ends he was constantly twisting into points; black eyebrows, and long, effeminate, black lashes. The two men conversed in short, elliptical sentences, using many technical terms.

"That 'seventeen' white pine is going to underpin," said Dyer. "It won't skid over 3,000."

"It's small stuff," agreed Radway, "and so much the worse for us. But the company'll stand in on it, because small stuff like that always overruns on the mill cut."

The scaler nodded comprehension.

"When are you going to dry haul that Norway across Pike lake?"

"Tomorrow. She springs, but the book says five inches of ice will hold a team, and there's more than that. How much are we putting in a day now?"

"About 40,000."

Radway fell silent.

"That's mighty little for such a crew," he observed at last doubtfully. "I always said you were too easy with them. You got to drive them more."

"Well, it's a rough country," apologized Radway, trying, as was his custom, to find excuses for the other party as soon as he was agreed with in his blame. "There's any amount of pot holes, and then we've had so much snow the ground ain't really froze underneath. It gets pretty soft in some of them swamps. Can't figure on putting up as much in this country as we used to down on the Muskegon."

The scaler smiled a thin smile all to himself behind the stove. Dyer knew perfectly well that the work was behind, and he knew the reason. For some time the men had been relaxing their efforts. They had worked honestly enough, but a certain snap and vim had lacked. This was because Radway had been too easy with them. Your true lumber jack adores all of things in creation a man whom he feels to be stronger than himself. If his employer is big enough to drive him, then he is willing to be driven to the last ounce of his strength. But once he gets the notion that his "boss" is afraid of or for him or his feelings or his health, he loses interest in his working for that man. As you value your authority, the love of your men and the completion of your work, keep a bluff brow and an unbending singleness of purpose.

Thorpe had already commented on the feeling among the men, though, owing to his inexperience, he was not able to estimate its full value. The men were inclined to a semi-poliogetic air when they spoke of their connection with the camp. Instead of being honored as one of a series of jobs this seemed to be considered as merely a temporary halting place in which they took no pride and from which they looked forward in anticipation or back in memory to better things.

"Old Shearer, he's the bully boy," said Bob Stratton. "I remember when he was foreman of M. & D. at Camp O. Saw—we did hustle them saw log in! I should rise to remark! Out in the woods by first streak of day. I recall one mornin' his was pretty cold, and the boys grumbled some about turn in' out. 'Cold,' says Tim, 'you sons of guns! You got your ch'ice. It may be too cold for you in the woods, but it's a blame sight too hot for you in indes, and you're goin' to one or the other! And he meant it too. Them was great days! Forty million a year and not a hitch!"

The next morning Radway transferred Molly and Jenny, with little Fabian Laveque and two of the younger men, to Pike lake. There earlier in the season a number of pines had been felled out on the ice, cut in logs and left in expectation of ice thick enough to bear the travoy "dray." Owing to the fact that the shores of Pike lake were extremely precipitous it had been impossible to travoy the logs up over the hill.

Radway had sounded carefully the thickness of the ice with an ax. Although the weather had been sufficiently cold for the time of year, the snow, as often happens, had fallen before the temperature. Under the warm white blanket the actual freezing had been slight. However, there seemed to be at least eight inches of clear ice, which would suffice.

Four logs had been safely hauled. The fifth was on its journey across the lake. Suddenly without warning and with scarcely a sound both horses sank through the ice, which bubbled up around them and over their backs in irregular rotted pieces. Little Fabian Laveque shouted and jumped down from his log. Pat McGuire and young Henrys came running.

The horses had broken through an air hole about which the ice was strong. Fabian had already seized Molly by the bit and was holding her head easily above water.

"Kitch Jenny by dat he'll!" he cried to Pat.

Thus the two men without exertion sustained the noses of the team above the surface. The position demanded absolutely no haste, for it could have been maintained for a good half hour. Molly and Jenny, their soft eyes full of the intelligence of the situation, rested easily in full confidence. But Pat and Henrys, new to this sort of emergency, were badly frightened and excited.

"Oh, Lord," cried Pat, clinging desperately to Jenny's headpiece, "what will we do? We can't niver haul them two horses on the ice."

"Tak' de log chain," said Fabian to Henrys, "an' tie him around de neck of Jenny."

Henrys after much difficulty and nervous fumbling managed to loosen the swamp hook and after much more difficulty succeeded in making it fast about the gray mare's neck. Fabian intended with this to choke the animal to that peculiar state when she would coat like a balloon on the water and two men could with ease draw her over the edge of the ice. Then the unexpected happened.

The instant Henrys had passed the end of the chain through the knot Pat, possessed by some Hibernian notion that now all was fast, let go of the bit. Jenny's head at once went under, and the end of the logging chain glided over and fell plump in the hole.

Immediately all was confusion. Jenny kicked and struggled, churned the water, throwing it about, kicking out in every direction. Once a horse's head dips strongly the game is over. No animal drowns more quickly. The two young boys scrambled away, and French oaths could not induce them to approach. Molly, still upheld by Fabian, looked at him piteously with her strange, intelligent eyes, holding herself motionless and rigid with complete confidence in this master who had never failed her before. Fabian dug his heels into the ice, but could not hang on. The drowning horse was more than a dead weight. Presently it became a question of letting go or being dragged into the lake on top of the animals. With a sob the little Frenchman relinquished his hold. The water seemed slowly to rise and overfill the troubled look of pleading in Molly's eyes.

"Assassins!" hissed Laveque at the two unfortunate youths; that was all. "I suppose it was a good deal my fault," commented Radway, doubtfully shaking his head after Laveque had left the office. "I ought to have been surer about the ice."

Radway was so confirmed in his belief as to his own culpability that he quite overlooked Fabian's just contention that the mere thinness of the ice was in reality no excuse for the losing of the horses. So Pat and Henrys were not discharged; were not instructed to "get their time." Fabian Laveque promptly demanded his.

"I no work wid dat fool dat no tink wit' hees hand!" This deprived the camp at once of a teamster and a team. When you care that one pair of horses takes care of the exertions of a crew of sawyers, several swamper and three or four cant hook men you will readily see what a serious derangement their loss would cause.

Radway did his best. He took three days to search out a big team of farm horses. Then it became necessary to find a driver. After some deliberation he decided to advance Bob Stratton to the post, that "decker" having had more or less experience the year before. Erickson, the Swede, while not a star cant hook man, was nevertheless sure and reliable. Radway placed him in Stratton's place. He remembered Thorpe.

Cause for Mirth. "Mary," said a Pine street lady to her cook the other morning, "I must insist that you keep better hours and that you have less company in the kitchen at night. Last night you kept me from sleeping because of the uproarious laughter of one of your woman friends." "Yis, mam, I know, but she couldn't help it. I was tellin' my lady friend how you tried to make cake one day."—Philadelphia Ledger.

NAPOLEON, As Seen by His Associates

A MILITARY AUTOCRAT

[Copyright, 1904, by G. L. Kilmer.]

XII.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON speaks of Napoleon in his "Representative Men" as "the incarnate democracy." Two memorialists of Napoleon's court, Mme. Remusat and the Duchesse d'Angoulême, depict the great Corsican as a man of dual nature and in exact words write of "two Napoleons," the one being in the main an admirable character according to advanced democratic ideals and the other just the reverse.

"There would seem to have been in him two different men," says Mme. de Remusat. "The one, rather gigantic than great, but nevertheless prompt to conceive and also prompt to execute, laid from time to time some of the foundations of the plan he had formed. This man, actuated by one single idea, untouched by any secondary impression likely to interfere with his projects, had he but taken for his aim the good of mankind, would, with such abilities as he displayed, have become the one greatest man of the earth."

"The other Bonaparte, forming a kind of uneasy conscience to the first, was devoured by anxiety, agitated by continual suspicion, a slave to passions which gave him no rest, distrustful, fearing every rival greatness, even that which he had himself created. If the necessity of political institutions was made plain to him, he was struck at the same moment by the rights which they must confer on individuals, and then, gradually becoming afraid of his own handiwork, he could not resist the temptation to destroy it piecemeal. He had been heard to say, after he had restored titles of nobility and given inalienable possessions to his marshals, 'I have made these people independent, but I shall know how to reach them and prevent them from being ungrateful.'"

"After the campaign of Austerlitz he was so inflated with success and with the worship which the people, half-dazzled and half-subjugated, paid to him that his despotism became more than ever intensified. Every citizen felt the yoke that was laid on him heavier. Heads were bowed almost before he passed, but it was discovered afterward that he had taken means to prevent their being lifted again. He surrounded himself with new splendor in order to put a greater distance between himself and other men."

"He held that uncertainty stimulates zeal, and therefore he rarely displayed satisfaction with either persons or things. Admirably served, always obeyed on the moment, he would still find fault and keep everybody in the palace in dread of his displeasure about some small detail. His service was the severest of toil. He has been heard to say, 'The truly happy man is he who hides from me in the country, and when I die the world will utter a great "Out!"'"

Bourrienne, the secretary of Napoleon under the consulate, writes as follows of the friend who became an exacting master:

"Bonaparte had two ruling passions, glory and war. He was never more gay than in the camp and never more morose than in the inactivity of peace. He often than once said to me: 'A great reputation is a great noise; the more there is made, the farther off it is heard. Laws, institutions, monuments, nations, all fall, but the noise continues and resounds in after ages.' This was one of his favorite ideas. 'My power,' he would say at other times, 'depends on my glory, and my glory on my victories. My power would fall were I not to support it by new glory and new victories. Conquest has made me what I am, and conquest alone can maintain me. A newly born government must dazzle and astonish. When it ceases to do that it falls.'"

"One of Bonaparte's greatest misfortunes was that he neither believed in friendship nor felt the necessity of loving. How often have I heard him say: 'Friendship is but a name. I love nobody. I do not even love my brothers—perhaps Joseph, a little, from habit and because he is my elder, and Duroc—I love him too. But why? Because his character pleases me. He is stern and resolute, and I really believe the fellow never shed a tear. For my part, I know very well that I have no true friends. As long as I continue what I am I may have as many pretended friends as I please. Leave sensibility to women; it is their business. But men should be firm in heart and in purpose, or they should have nothing to do with war or government.'"

Bourrienne also reveals the methods by which Napoleon cautiously yet steadily drew the nation under his absolute sway. Says he: "By the commencement of the year 1802 the republic had ceased to be anything else than a fiction or a historical recollection. All that remained of it was a deceptive inscription on the gates of the palace. Even at the time of his installation at the Tuilleries Bonaparte had caused the two trees of liberty which were planted in the court to be cut down, thus removing the outward emblems before he destroyed the reality. But the moment the senatorial decisions of the 2d and 4th of August were published it was evident to the dullest perceptions that the power of the First Consul wanted nothing but a name. After these consults Bonaparte readily accustomed himself to regard the principal authorities of the state merely as instruments for the exercise of his power."

Even at this early date the head of an ostensible republic adopted the hated customs of the deposed kings. Says Bourrienne:

"Some time after his nomination to the consulate for life, anxious to perform a sovereign act, he went for the first time to preside at the senate. Availing myself that day of a few leisure moments, I went out to see the consular procession. It was truly royal. The First Consul had given orders that the military should be ranged in the streets through which he had to pass. On his first arrival at the Tuilleries Napoleon had the soldiers of the Guard ranged in a single line in the interior of the court, but he now ordered that the line should be doubled and should extend from the gate of the Tuilleries to that of the Luxembourg. Assuming a privilege which old etiquette had confined exclusively to the kings of France, Bonaparte now for the first time rode in a carriage drawn by eight horses. A considerable number of carriages followed that of the First Consul, which was surrounded by generals and aids-de-camp on horseback. Louis XIV. going to hold a bed of justice at the parliament of Paris never displayed greater pomp than did Bonaparte in this visit to the senate. He appeared in all the parade of royalty, and ten senators came to meet him at the foot of the staircase of the Luxembourg."

Mme. de Remusat tells how at length the mask was thrust aside, for Napoleon need no longer dazzle and deceive. He had put on the crown won by his sword. She says:

"How often has he not made use of these specious words in order to allay apprehension: 'The French revolution need fear nothing since the throne of the Bourbons is occupied by a soldier! And at the same time he would assume toward kings the attitude of a protector of thrones, for,' he would say, 'I have abolished republics.'"

"He sometimes said, 'It is my intention to reach such a point that the kings of Europe shall be forced, each one of them, to have a palace in Paris, and at the time of the coronation of an emperor of the French they shall take up their residence in it, be present at the ceremony and render it more imposing by their homage.'"

"He deprecated the greatness of Henry IV. 'He was wanting,' said he, 'in gravity. Good nature is an affection which a sovereign ought to avoid. What does he want? Is it to remind those who surround him that he is a man like any other? What nonsense! So soon as a man is a king he is apart from all."

For a climax to this picture of the autocrat in the palace one must turn to the camps of that army whose bayonets won and upheld the throne of the usurper. The startling incident here described was witnessed by the narrator of the story, General Segur, at the time (1805) an aid-de-camp of the newly fledged emperor. Says Segur:

"On the march toward Vienna Napoleon was galloping past a column of light artillery when, some twenty steps before him, he saw an artilleryman raise in a threatening way his head, which at the same instant was almost wholly lopped off by his captain with a furious blow of the sabre. The head of the poor wretch hung for an instant on his shoulders and then fell upon the ground, amid a torrent of blood. At this frightful spectacle Napoleon turned pale and, rushing forward, cried, 'What have you done there, captain?' 'My duty,' rejoined the officer rudely, 'and until I am killed by one of my soldiers,' he added laughingly, looking them in the face, 'I will serve in the same way those who fail to obey their captain.' The emperor, struck with the man's energy, remained an instant dumb, but presently, mastering his emotion, resumed in a firm voice: 'If such is the case you have done well. You are a brave officer. You understand your duty. That is how I want to be served.'"
